Dried Flower Projects
 Making a Dried Flower Wreath,
 Swag, Hanging Bunches & more

Making a dried flower wreath

Fresh greenery can be used to cover a wreath base first. Then embellish the leaves roses, bear grass and dried pepper berries.

1. Mist moss to soften it more pliable. Secure it to a straw base wreath with hot glue (or secure it to a foam with floral pins).

2. Cut the stems of the greenery from 2"-3". Attach clusters of leaves to the wreath greening pins. Cover all sides of the wreath generously with the plant material. O stems as you go. As the wreath dries the leaves will shrink, so you need to create a

straw base wreath

greening pins

3. Wire the stems of the decorating material to floral picks, and insert throughou

wired floral picks

Hanging Bunches

Select colors of plant material that will coordinate with the proposed site of your

1. Working on a flat surface, place the longest fan out at the back of the arrangement. Grasses such as oats or wheat provide an background for the subtle shades of dried flowers.

2. Keep the tips spread out and the ends close together as you arrange long flower delphinium or larkspur slightly lower than the grasses.

3. Place your compact flowers at various heights within the center of the arrangem hydrangeas and strawflowers are perfect focal accents.

4. Fill out the bottom and sides of the arrangement with caspia, sea lavender, add and other similar fine material.

5. Bind the stems with florist coiled wire (a lightweight roll wire), and hot glue a p bow close to the top of the stems.

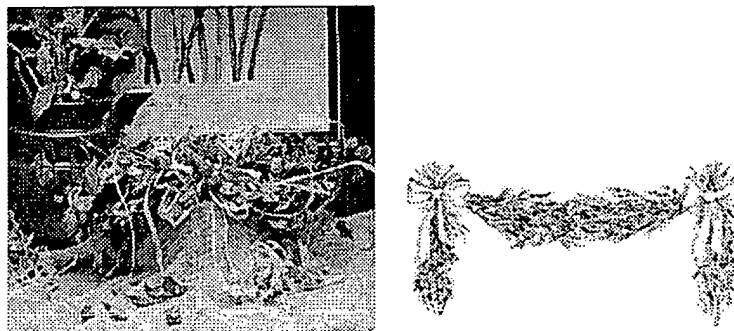

florist coiled wire

6. Make a hanging loop in the center of the back of the arrangement by slipping a 20-gauge wire through some of the stems and twisting it into a loop.

20 gauge precut wire

Swags

A walk in the woods is more fun when you can gather things as you go for a project space where you want to hang your swag so you know how long your twigs and berries will be.

1. Working flat on a table, tie four bundles of twigs and branches about 4" from the spool wire or twine.
2. To make the center loop, push the open sides of two bundles together. Wire or overlapping branches to secure.
3. To add the side bundles, wire or tie them to the ends of the center section.
4. Insert berries and dried flowers into the twigs. Add bows to the corners of the

Dried Headdress

The floral headdress first appeared in history during the time of the Greeks. It is as now as it was then. Dried headdresses are made the same way as fresh ones, by bundling flowers together and wiring them to a floral taped wire. Bows evenly spaced through the circlet or trailing ribbons can be added to cover the hooks at either ends of the wire. Pearls and feathers can be added by wiring and taping them like flowers.

1. Form the basic circlet with two, twenty-three inch long, 20-gauge wires. Form ends. Bind the wire together with floral tape.
2. Using bright coiled wire, bind up small bunches of flowers such as roses, delph gypsophila. Cover the wire with floral tape.
3. Start taping the bunches to the top end of the wire. Leave a slight gap to allow Gradually build up the bunches in overlapping layers. The flowers can also be tap starting from each end, so they point towards each other in the middle.
4. When all the bundles are attached, bend the wire round a little at a time. Hook together, and conceal the hook with a ribbon.

Flower Garden

By placing floral material in groups of varying heights, you can achieve a very diffe Fruits and berries can be interspersed among the flowers.

1. Wedge floral foam snugly into your container.
2. Using dried larkspur, delphinium or any tall, thin flowers fill abo of the container. Select one or two other tall florals and fill another space.
3. Add some artificial fruit and some round, compact flowers. Fill i floral and leaves.

Small Garden

You can become absorbed in the making of a small, moss garden.

1. Shape floral foam to suggest a geological terrain and hot glu inside of the container.
2. Tightly pack moss to completely cover the foam. Secure it with floral pins or ho
3. Add pebbles, stones, sections of bark or wood, tree twigs and dried flowers.

Abstract Ikebana

Based on an asymmetrical triangle, the three points in the design represent heaven, man and earth. The simple, bonsai container is essential for this dramatic design; a china or an elaborate vase would detract from the clean, pure lines of the design.

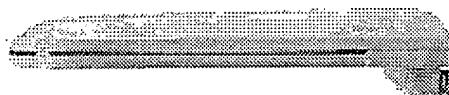

1. Insert the branches into a small block of floral foam that is securely anchored in the container.
2. Add the three ferns, some grape hyacinth and field rape accenting the strong design, leading the eye to the focal point, the cluster of poppy seed heads and the hydrangea.

Dried Lavender

DRIED LAVENDER

Choose from three types of lavender...

Lavandula x Intermedia 'Grosso': Beautiful long-stemmed (20-24") Grosso releases an abundant long-lasting fragrance with just a gentle touch. Grosso is considered one of the most fragrant of all lavenders. Spikes are compact and range in color from light to deep blue.

Recommended for floral displays and all potpourri & sachet blends.

Lavandula x Intermedia 'Provence': Very straight, long-stemmed (22-26") with a hint of mint in the fragrance. The delicate pale flowers of Provence make an excellent addition to dried arrangements or potpourri sachet blends.

Lavandula x Angustifolia 'Hidcote': Short-stemmed (5-8") with a sweet delicate fragrance & flavor. Retains its deep purple/blue foliage even when dried. Wonderful in desert recipes such as cakes, teas & honey.

Raffia-Wrapped Hanging Lavender Displays

Long-stemmed, highly fragrant dried Grosso lavender delivers both traditional beauty and elegant charm to any home. Ready to hang 1/4 pound bundles are wrapped in your choice of forest green, deep purple (not shown) or midnight blue raffia and tagged with a description card about your lavender.
